

Finding 6

Online Learning, Change, & Educational Reform

- The institutionalization of e-learning or online learning in America's schools is not about competition with the traditional K–12 schools.
- It also is not about disseminating new or innovative instructional technologies.
- Rather, it is essentially about one aspect of educational improvement, school reform, and improving academic performance in America's high schools.